DISCLAIMER

The material in this presentation does not reflect the official views, ideas, opinions and/or findings of DARPA, the Department of Defense, or of the United States government.

The author of this presentation is not currently a DARPA employee

Approved for Public Release, Distribution Unlimited
DARPA

• Formed in 1958 to PREVENT and CREATE strategic surprise
• Consists of technical program managers
  – Identify major high risk, high payoff technical challenges
  – Create innovative technical programs that address the challenges
  – Fund a comprehensive and integrated set of projects that attack and solve the program challenges

• Our nation’s innovation engine, committed to the boldest, creative leaps…
  – For example – information technology

DISCLAIMER
The material in this presentation does not reflect the official views, ideas, opinions and/or findings of DARPA, the Department of Defense, or of the United States government.

The author of this presentation is not currently a DARPA employee
Doing business with DARPA...

- Become familiar with the challenges and opportunities of National Security.
- Put your ideas in writing. Draft a white paper.
- Approach a program manager; they are the key to working with DARPA.
- Think boldly. Embrace risk.

DISCLAIMER

The material in this presentation does not reflect the official views, ideas, opinions and/or findings of DARPA, the Department of Defense, or of the United States government.

The author of this presentation is not currently a DARPA employee.
Engaging with DARPA...

If you have an idea that is high-risk, high-reward and would like to do business with DARPA, please contact the appropriate Office Director or Program Manager.

www.darpa.mil

DISCLAIMER
The material in this presentation does not reflect the official views, ideas, opinions and/or findings of DARPA, the Department of Defense, or of the United States government.

The author of this presentation is not currently a DARPA employee.